Item 4: Advisory Business

MDC Financial Research, LLC (“MDC”) is an Investment Advisor registered in the states of California and New York. MDC was founded by Michael D. Cohen, MDC’s sole principal owner, on December 10, 2008, and it commenced operations on February 5, 2009.

MDC typically offers one advisory service called the “Event-Driven LegalSM” investment-research service; however, MDC may provide customized “Special Research Projects” to individual clients at the client’s request that are additional to this service. Any “Special Research Project” to be undertaken by MDC should be something that would not have otherwise have been included in a subscription to its “Event-Driven LegalSM” investment-research service, or that may provide an advantage to one client over MDC’s other clients. A “Special Research Project” may be provided to either an existing client or to a client that is not a subscriber to MDC’s “Event-Driven LegalSM” investment-research service. Examples of such “Special Research Projects” could include research on a legal situation particular to a company that MDC otherwise would not have included in its “Event-Driven LegalSM” investment-research service, or it may include special distribution rights to a firm (such as a Broker/Dealer) to distribute or make derivative works based on our research that it may then distribute to its own clients.

MDC may also create additional investment-research products and/or services in the future that would be broadly offered to institutional clients in addition to its current “Event-Driven LegalSM” investment-research service.

MDC’s “Event-Driven LegalSM” investment-research service specializes in providing research on significant legal disputes of public companies to provide both long-term and short-term investment ideas primarily for institutional investors (mostly hedge funds) although this service may be offered to others (such as individuals) that demonstrate to have and/or represent themselves to have institutional level sophistication, and are comfortable with following legal events through the Court system and/or through Federal Agencies, regardless of their assets under management (if any).

The selection of these companies and/or legal situations is at the discretion of MDC. The legal disputes followed are typically those that have the potential to significantly move a public company’s share price. Some examples of the types of legal situations followed are intellectual property disputes, antitrust cases, false claims act cases, and cases that can affect pending mergers & acquisitions. The term “Event-Driven” is typically identified as a hedge-fund strategy. MDC believes that it invented the term “Event-Driven LegalSM” to identify its service as being a subset of the “Event-Driven” strategy with a specific focus on legal events as opposed to corporate or other non-legal events.

The ways that MDC aims to support the investment returns of its mostly institutional clients include:

- Locating significant legal situations;
- Alerting of potential future volatility events and providing estimates of timing;
- Educating clients on case histories and other information in preparation for catalysts;
- Reporting the parties' arguments and other legal developments;
- Attending trials and/or hearings in an effort to provide timely on-site updates;
- Watching dockets closely with in-house automated software in an effort to break news;
- Estimating potential impact to share-price;
- Providing clients with opinions as to the desirability of buying or selling a security; and
- Answering client questions on our research, specific cases, or other related issues.

MDC's "Event-Driven LegalSM" service advises on Equity Securities, including: exchange-listed securities, securities traded over-the-counter, and foreign issuers. It may also advise on option contracts derived from equity securities as well as convertible bonds. MDC's "Event-Driven LegalSM" service typically does not include the securities of companies that have less than a $100 Million USD market capitalization. MDC communicates research results to clients in: (i) the body of emails, (ii) written reports in the form of PDF files attached to E-mails, and/or (iii) oral communications via telephone or in person.

The amount, frequency, and form of communications to clients remain flexible based on the judgment and ability of MDC. Communications typically include receiving E-mail or phone updates on breaking legal news. Additionally, MDC may occasionally publish: (i) MDC Action Notes, (ii) MDC Coverage Reports, (iii) The MDC List of Significant Legal Disputes, and/or (iv) other publicly-distributed research products created by MDC.

MDC's research can provide opinions as to the desirability and timing of buying, selling, or holding specific securities.

Every client of MDC typically receives the same research; except for (i) oral communications via telephone or in person (ii) responses to individual questions or expressed interests communicated by clients and (iii) any research projects that are entered into with individual clients that go beyond the scope of our subscription research service. MDC's advisory services are also sometimes tailored to meet the individual needs of clients by providing customized recommendations or support based on each individual client's goals, risk tolerance levels, strategies, holdings, capabilities, and/or other factors.

MDC does not maintain custody or discretion over client assets or accounts.

MDC's services only provide information to facilitate investment decisions. We are not attorneys, and we do not practice law or provide legal advice.

MDC publicly releases some of its research to the institutional-investor community in an effort to make the market aware of our services.

MDC is also not a broker/dealer. We do not trade for clients, and we are not associated with any wrap fee programs.

Item 5: Fees & Compensation

MDC Financial Research, LLC (“MDC”) typically charges a prepaid and fixed-rate subscription fee each quarter (three-month period) for its advisory services. Upon receipt of a quarterly billing invoice from MDC, clients may compensate MDC through either (i) direct payment or (ii) payment from “soft-dollar” brokerage accounts.

Fee Schedule:

- Subscription fees for MDC’s “Event-Driven LegalSM” investment-research service are typically paid in advance at a rate of $5,000 per quarter for clients with greater than $10 million in total assets under management or $2,500 per quarter for clients with less than $10 million in total assets under management. Subscription fees may be negotiable and can be higher or lower than typical fees depending on the service needs of individual clients. For example, fees may be higher if a client intends to use more of our time individually than average clients, and fees may be lower if our research appears to only provide a firm with minimal value based on its investment strategy or a poor match in companies covered.
- Special Research Projects may be provided for a negotiated fixed fee agreed upon in advance or compensated based upon the client’s discretion following project completion.

MDC asks for prepayment one quarter (three-month period) in advance for its subscription research service(s). Research subscription agreements are 'at will' and can be cancelled by written notification to MDC at any time. Upon notification of cancellation, any unearned fees will be promptly refunded. Refunds are on a pro-rated basis. (For example, if a refund request is received half way through the prepayment period, then half the prepaid subscription fees will be refunded). For the purpose of calculating refunds, a quarter will be considered as 90 calendar-days.

An investment advisory contract with MDC may be terminated by the client within five (5) business days of signing the contract without incurring any advisory fees.

MDC’s clients are not required to pay any other fees to MDC in connection with our service(s); however, MDC’s clients acknowledge that the fees charged for MDC’s service(s) do not include any applicable sales taxes and/or use taxes in any applicable jurisdiction(s) outside MDC’s home jurisdiction of the State of California, and that Clients in other States and/or jurisdiction(s) agree to be solely responsible for the payment of such taxes if applicable.

Clients that act upon MDC’s research by purchasing or selling securities (and/or derivatives) also should expect to pay fees to a broker-dealer; you can see Pages 10 and 11 to read about our brokerage practices.

MDC and its Supervised Persons do not currently accept compensation for the purchase or sale of securities and/or other investment products.

Please note that lower fees for comparable services may be available from other sources.

Item 6: Performance Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

MDC and/or its supervised persons do not accept performance-based fees and/or participate in Side-By-Side Management.

Item 7: Types of Clients

MDC Financial Research, LLC (“MDC”) generally provides its services to institutional investors; such as hedge funds, investment advisors, proprietary traders, other pooled investment vehicles, and corporations or business entities other than those listed above.

MDC may also provide its services to companies that are the subject of MDC’s research. These companies do not exert control or discretion over the specific advice, recommendations, opinions, or views contained in MDC’s research. MDC does not receive an economic benefit (cash, commissions, equipment, etc.) from these companies in connection with giving specific advice to MDC’s other clients, but MDC may be compensated for distributing its research to these companies.

MDC may also provide its services to individual investors who have experience from the institutional-investment industry and/or individual investors that in our judgment demonstrate institutional-level sophistication.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

MDC’s methods of analysis primarily include fundamental and quantitative analysis. The main sources of information MDC uses include:

- Inspections of corporate activities;
- annual reports, prospectuses, and filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission;
- company press releases;
- physical attendance in U.S. Courts;
- the U.S. Courts’ Public Access to Court Electronic Records (PACER) service;
- the International Trade Commission’s Electronic Document Information System (EDIS);
- the USPTO’s Patent Application Information Retrieval (PAIR) service and the USPTO’s Patent Review Processing System;
- other court-related services such as court reporters, legal copy services, and other document retrieval services;
- accessing financial and legal information through the Bloomberg Professional Service; and
- accessing miscellaneous information from a variety of Internet web sites.

In general, MDC’s customers determine their own investment strategies to implement MDC’s investment advice. However, MDC sometimes discusses the following investment strategies with its clients:

- Long-term purchases (securities held at least a year);
- short-term purchases (securities sold within a year);
- trading (securities sold within 30 days);
- short sales;
- option writing, including covered options, uncovered options or spreading strategies; or
- option purchases, and various other options strategies.

MDC's research and advice do not protect clients from a risk of loss, and clients should expect to bear this risk. Securities of companies involved in significant legal disputes can experience sudden and unexpected price swings, and hence tend to be extremely risky. Securities of information technology, emerging energy, biotechnology, and pharmaceutical companies can also be extremely risky even without the overlay of a complex legal situation. Accordingly, the price or value of common shares and/or financial instruments that MDC provides research on may rise or fall with extreme volatility. Furthermore, past performance is not a guarantee of future performance.

Item 9: Education Standards

MDC Financial Research, LLC ("MDC") requires all persons associated with it that determine or give investment advice to clients to meet minimum education requirements. MDC also promotes continual education of its employees with its culture of learning, by providing flexibility in work schedules, and by providing access to educational materials.

The minimum education requirements for a supervised person that determines or gives investment advice, acting as an "Analyst" are:

- Both a four-year university degree and at least a two-year graduate degree (such as a Masters of Business Administration degree); or
- A four-year university degree with a minimum of a 3.5 Cumulative GPA, or a minimum of a 3.5 GPA in the last two years of full-time college coursework (averaging over 12 units per semester), coupled with intentions of continued education.

The minimum education requirement for a supervised person that determines or gives investment advice, acting as a "Solicitor" is:

- A four-year university degree.

All Investment Advisor Representatives of MDC will also meet the examination or experience requirements of the State(s) in which they provide investment advisory services.

Item 10: Disciplinary Information

MDC Financial Research, LLC ("MDC"), its management, its sole principal owner, and/or its supervised persons have never been involved in a legal or disciplinary event that is material to clients.

Item 11: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Except as described herein, MDC Financial Research, LLC ("MDC") does not participate in any other financial industry business activities and does not have any financial industry affiliations that would likely be material to clients; however, MDC does retain "THE $ COACH, LLC" (another State Registered Investment Advisor) as a business consultant to assist us with accounting, bookkeeping, and miscellaneous compliance duties.

Item 12: Code of Ethics,

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

MDC Financial Research, LLC ("MDC") has adopted a Code of Ethics that establishes policies to help protect clients' interests and to address potential conflicts of interest that may arise between MDC (or a related person) and its clients (or the investing public). The Code of Ethics generally prohibits fraudulent or manipulative practices in connection with its investment recommendations, and it establishes policies with respect to securities transactions of MDC and its representatives. In general, MDC's supervised persons may invest at their discretion in the securities of (or option contracts derived upon) companies that MDC recommends to clients or to the public in research reports or other forms of communication; however, any such transactions must comply with its Code of Ethics. This Code prohibits MDC's supervised persons from buying or selling securities of (or option contracts derived upon) companies that are the subject of any MDC Coverage Report, MDC Action Note, or any other publicly distributed research (but not E-mail or oral communications) within a period of 20 days prior and 5 days subsequent to the subject reports initial distribution. This Code also requires the advisor and its representatives to disclose security positions of interest to any client upon request. It also requires written disclosure of positions held in companies that are the subject of any MDC Coverage Report or MDC Action Note (but not E-mail or oral communications). MDC Financial Research, LLC will provide a full copy of its Code of Ethics to any client or prospective client upon request.

MDC Financial Research, LLC discloses to all of its clients any identified material conflicts of interest relating to MDC, its representatives or any of its employees, which could be reasonably expected to impair the rendering of unbiased and objective advice.

The following are two identified potential conflicts of interest that could arise:

- MDC’s “Event-Driven LegalSM” investment-research service typically does not include companies that have less than a $100 Million USD market capitalization. MDC adopted this policy, because MDC wants its research distribution emails to be relevant to its entire client base. MDC’s supervised persons could become aware of and invest in legal-event opportunities regarding companies with market capitalizations of less than $100 Million USD. This policy creates a potential conflict of interest, because such companies could eventually become included in the “Event-Driven LegalSM” service after reaching a $100 Million USD market capitalization. To remedy this potential conflict of interest, MDC will always be responsive to clients when asked for a list of companies that MDC is aware of that: (i) Are below a market capitalization of $100 Million USD, and (ii) have what we believe to be at least one significant legal situation. MDC may also provide information about such companies in response to expressed individual client interest.
- MDC may provide its services to companies that are the subject of MDC’s research. This policy creates a potential conflict of interest, because a Supervised Person of MDC could theoretically allow this relationship to affect MDC’s research. To remedy this potential conflict of interest, MDC has created a new section of its Code of Ethics called “Integrity of Research.” This section requires that Supervised Persons of MDC strive to create only unbiased and objective research. MDC does not allow these companies to exert control or discretion over the specific advice, recommendations, opinions, or views contained in MDC’s research. MDC does not receive an economic benefit (cash, commissions, equipment, etc.) from these companies in connection with giving specific advice to its other clients, but MDC may be compensated for distributing its research to these companies. If MDC is compensated by a company that is the subject of its research, then this relationship will be clearly disclosed in all research on that company.

The general forms of disclosures regarding material conflicts of interest are contained in this Brochure (Form ADV Part II) and/or Research Subscription Agreements executed with individual clients. More specific (or changing) potential conflicts of interest (such as share ownership of Investment Advisor Representatives) will be disclosed to clients in a "Disclosure" section contained in relevant written communications (such as research reports). Please read these disclosures carefully.

Item 13: Brokerage Practices

MDC Financial Research, LLC (“MDC”) may suggest brokers to clients or prospective clients. These clients or prospective clients should be aware that they are under no obligation to use any brokers suggested by MDC or its representatives. Any suggestions would likely be based on a personal relationship or as a means of allowing MDC to be paid by clients (or prospective clients) that prefer to compensate through trading commissions as opposed to direct payment for a subscription research service.

If the basis for suggesting a broker is as a means of payment to MDC, then clients (or prospective clients) may expect to pay commissions higher than those obtainable from other brokers in return for the ability to obtain services supplied by MDC. The factors used in determining such suggested brokers would be the broker's ability to remit "soft dollar" payments to MDC or to possibly enter into another sort of commission-sharing arrangement. While MDC will try to only suggest brokers that charge commissions that it believes are in line with the market rates charged for comparable services, all brokerage accounts will only be between the client (or prospective client) and the suggested brokerage firm itself. Accordingly, all clients (or prospective clients) should carefully review commission rates being charged by suggested brokers. It remains the client's (or prospective client's) sole responsibility to determine the reasonableness of any brokerage agreements that they agree to undertake.

Item 14: Review of Accounts

MDC does not maintain custody of, and/or have discretion over, client assets, and thus MDC does not review client accounts.

Item 15: Client Referrals and Other Compensation

MDC and/or its supervised persons do not receive an economic benefit (cash, commissions, equipment, etc.) from a non-client in connection with giving advice to clients.

MDC may directly compensate person(s) or other businesses for referrals ("sales leads") that result in client acquisition(s). Currently, the only person that acts as a solicitor for MDC is Jeffrey A. Freehill, CFA. MDC maintains a separate written solicitor disclosure that is distributed when applicable.

Item 16: Custody

MDC does not maintain custody of client assets.

Item 17: Investment Discretion

MDC Financial Research, LLC ("MDC") does not accept discretionary authority to manage assets on behalf of clients.

Item 18: Voting Client Securities

MDC does not accept authority to vote client securities; however, clients may contact MDC with questions about voting by speaking with MDC's Analyst(s) to receive their opinions.

Item 19: Financial Information

MDC does not require or solicit the prepayment of subscription fees six-months or more in advance, so MDC is not required to include an audited balance sheet in this Brochure (Form ADV Part II).

MDC does not have any financial conditions that are likely to impair its ability to meet contractual commitments to its clients.

MDC has never been the subject of a bankruptcy petition.

Item 20: Requirements for State-Registered Advisors

MDC's sole principal executive officer is Michael David Cohen.

- Education Background:
